THE RED CROSS STAMPS.

It is within the power of every man, woman and child in Albuquerque to aid a great and noble cause at this season—a cause in which the people of this city and state are interested far more than those of most other communities in the United States.

The Red Cross stamps are within the reach of everybody, and everybody should buy them as their means will permit. Every penny expended for one of these stamps goes to aid in one of the greatest battles ever waged in the interest of humanity, the fight to conquer the dread plague which has taken more lives than all the wars in which the country has ever been engaged. Surely it is worth while to be a soldier in such an army and help, in whatever way is possible, to exterminate such a foe.

The efforts of the American Anti-Tuberculosis league for several years past are too well known to require any comment. The success of those efforts has surpassed the fondest dreams of the unselfish men and women who have given so prodigally of their time and labors in this great humanitarian work. As a result of their activities tuberculosis has been taken definitely out of the class of incurable diseases and the door of hope and usefulness has been opened to millions of men and women whose only prospect hitherto had been one of lingering torture and certain death.

The work of fighting this dread enemy of mankind is necessarily one which can not be allowed to stop. It is a work which expands and grows in opportunities for good as it goes on. The education of the masses in the necessity and means of taking preventive measures to guard against tuberculosis has only fairly begun. The continued prosecution of this campaign of education is a matter of vital importance not only to those who stand in need of education on the subject, but to all those with whom they come in contact, which means every man, woman and child in the United States.

It is unnecessary to call attention to the peculiar interest which this movement has for the people of Albuquerque. The large number of people who have come to this city to gain relief from tuberculosis and who are either temporarily or permanently located among us makes it imperative that every citizen should be at all times alert and should, from a practical as well as a sentimental standpoint, exert his best efforts to aid in this great fight.

Buy the Red Cross stamps. Buy as many as you can, but if you can't afford many, at least buy one. You can not tell how much good that one penny may do.

THE SOURCE OF THE TAR PARTY.

While nothing of the sort appeared in the news dispatches relative to the trial of the case, reports from apparently reliable news sources have it that the now famous—or rather infamous—tar party at Shady Bend, Kan., was conceived and planned at a "mother's meeting" in that enterprising community.

We trust that the report is not true. We would vastly prefer to believe that no gathering of women could be capable of such a conspiracy against one of their sisters, and that the whole affair, from beginning to end, was the result of innate depravity, traces of which are supposed to be inseparable from the masculine character. It is not pleasant to think that woman, from the pedestal of gentleness and goodness on which, by common consent, she has been exalted from the beginning of time to rest, could descend to an act of atrocity such as was displayed in the Kansas tar party incident.

If, however, there is any truth in the story, it opens up a wonderful field for philosophic reflection. Man's inhumanity to man is proverbial. There have been cynics to declare that woman's inhumanity to woman was no less marked, but the world has rejected this theory, and exalted the mothering angel view of the feminine character. In sons and story woman has stood as the type of sweetness, of gentleness and of mercy, and that ideal has been held up to the world as the standard of the masculine conception of woman.

But, after all, the tar party was a sporadic incident, and in no sense typical of anything. Happily, the incident is closed, and even if the of the complexity of the women of the community in the outrage be true it will not affect the general status of things. It would take more than one tar party to affect the faith of man in the inherent goodness and loveliness of woman.

IS THIS TO BE A BARREN CENTURY?

Dr. Inge, the dean of St. Paul's cathedral in London, has the bias whenever he contemplates the present century. Science is advancing, but nothing else is. But Dr. Inge becomes the gloomiest when he compares this century with the preceding one and the great Victorians which it brought forth. When he contemplates the difference he sees signs of exhaustion. He sees stagnation in ethics, philosophy, literature and art. He calls aloud for men that measure up to the distinguished Victorians of the dead and gone century. No Napoleon, or Tennyson, or Ruskin, or Carlyle, or Darwin, or Thackeray appears.

But Dr. Inge is very previous, to use a little slang. This century is in its infancy, and Dr. Inge does not know what it will be when it has reached its last quarter, for it was in the last quarter of the nineteenth century that its greatest achievements came.

The truth seems to be that this century will be more devoted to economics and social reforms than to philosophy, literature and art. It may not be as brilliant as the nineteenth century, but it will be more practical in its charities. It may do more for the oppressed and depressed. It may do vastly more in bringing in political liberty and equality. The number of republics is increasing, and if China should become a republic even Dr. Inge would be puzzled to find in the century he admires an event of equal significance and humanity. The world will be humanized in the twentieth century, even if no rivals of the Victorians appear. The century is still young and Dr. Inge should not judge it in its earliest days.

AN EXTINCT ANIMAL.

Here are some apples—pippins, at that—of gold in pictures of silver from the Manhattan Mercury: "The girl of sixteen thinks the girl of twenty is an old maid, the girl of twenty-five thinks the girl of twenty-five is an old maid, the girl of thirty thinks the girl of thirty is an old maid, the girl of forty is an old maid, and the girl of forty knows that the old maid is an extinct species, belonging to former times. The world of today has a place and a work for the unmarried woman, and woman with a work to do never becomes superannuated. The 'poor old maid' belongs to a former generation of men."

Oh, yes, we have snow occasionally. Just to please those misguided visitors who like to sentimentalize on its beauty, but the sunshine is just around the corner, and its genial rays will soon come forth to proclaim anew that the climate of New Mexico is the most glorious and hospitable in all the world.

It's a cinch that the Prinz Joachim and his little old wreck would never have gotten more than a couple of lines in the press dispatches had she not had on board that prize of wreckers, William Jennings Bryan. Who will deny that it pays to advertise?

Oh, well, a special train would have been more suitable, but the New Mexico delegates will all get to Chicago nevertheless, and Chicago will know what it is to have some good people in her midst when they get there.

We don't endorse any too much over the beautiful snow, but if it will only remind the tardy shopper that Christmas is on the way and coming fast it will undoubtedly have accomplished a noble purpose.

The returns yesterday show that the Chinese revolutionists lost a few of the nothing precincts, but we are still banking on a big majority for them in the final count.

It is now generally admitted that all Marathon records will be smashed by the McNamara trial. Compared to it the Hyde case looks like a mad sprint.

Candidates may come and candidates may go, but Champ Clark's optimism goes on forever, the only time it ever hesitates for an instant being the day after election.

The official count will necessarily be slow, but we will have the satisfaction of knowing that no man will be allowed to hold office by virtue of arithmetic.

What's the use waiting until just before Christmas to do your shopping? You've got to buy anyhow, and the sooner you do it the quicker you'll be over with it.

We haven't heard anything recently from Han, Ho Lee, Chinese revolutionary of Los Angeles. Can it be that his name was too much for even a Chinese reformer?

What difference does it make how near England and Germany came to fighting last summer, so long as they never fight?

The "Chicken Feed" will not set far away from Newport until after the rest of the country is able to raise the price of real chicken.

Woodrow Wilson's boom is still staggering along on crutches, but from this distance it seems to be powerful puny.

It's all off. The Denver laundry-men have cut off their pig tails and pulled down the dragon flag.

All indications are that we are again approaching the open season for Mexican revolutions.

TEA AND COFFEE DRINKING

The British board of trade has published statistics in reference to the consumption of tea and coffee in 1909 and 1910 in the principal countries of Europe, in the United States and in the most important of the British self-governing dominions, with particulars of the chief sources of supply.

The consumption of tea in the United Kingdom in 1909 aggregated 282,350,000 pounds, and in 1910, 286,892,000 pounds. The average consumption per individual was 6.29 pounds in 1910, as against 6.37 pounds in 1909. The consumption per individual, however, in 1909 (figures for 1910 are not given), was greater for both Australia and New Zealand than for the United Kingdom, being 6.32 pounds and 7.43 pounds, respectively. The average consumption per individual in the Dominion of Canada in 1909 was 4.43 pounds, and in 1910, 4.34 pounds. In the Netherlands the average consumption per individual in 1909 was 1.73 pounds, and in 1910 it was 2.07 pounds (provisional). In the German empire and Luxembourg in 1909 the average consumption per person was .17 of a pound, and in 1910 it was .11 of a pound. In France in 1909 it was .07 of a pound, and in 1910, .07 of a pound (provisional). In the United States the figures were 1.24 pounds in 1909 and .89 of a pound in 1910.

The amount of tea re-exported from the United Kingdom in 1910 aggregated 48,121,009 pounds, as against 51,847,952 pounds in 1909.

The consumption of coffee in the United Kingdom in 1910 was 29,192,000 pounds, or an average of .65 pound to the individual. This was slightly less than in 1909, when the average consumption was .67 pound. In almost all other parts of the British empire there was less coffee consumed per individual in 1910 than in 1909. In the latter year (statistics are not given for 1910) there was an average consumption per individual in South Africa, however, of nearly seven pounds.

The United States stood first in 1910, as it has for many years, in the matter of coffee consumption, the total amount being over $60,414,000 pounds, or an average of 5.33 pounds per individual. The German empire came next with 37,582,000 pounds, or 2.50 pounds for each person. The greatest per capita consumption, however, was in the Netherlands, where the total amount of coffee consumed in 1910 was about 56,000,000 pounds, or 15.32 pounds to the individual. In Belgium the total consumption in 1910 was $1,854,000 pounds, or 10.30 pounds per person. In France the total consumption was about 342,000,000 pounds, or 6.26 pounds to the individual, and in Austria-Hungary 131,340,000 pounds of coffee were consumed in 1910, being an average consumption of 2.82 pounds for each person.

The largest importations of coffee in 1910, as well as in 1909, were from Brazil, Colombia, Venezuela, Central America, Mexico and the Dutch East Indies.—Bradstreet's.

THIRD DEGREE GETS A HARD WALLOP

California Court Declares It Will Not Be Tolerated When Brought to Attention of Court.

San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 26.—The state supreme court, in a decision yesterday making ineffective a decision yesterday wrong from a prisoner laboring under mental stress and characterized by the "third degree," as an "unwarranted assumption of a dominating and browbeating attitude," which will not be tolerated if brought to the attention of that tribunal. The decision is in the case of the state vs. Agostino Horrell of Amador county, who was found guilty of arson in 1905 in the superior court of that county and who lost his appeal in the appellate court. Horrell was accused of having fired an unknown man to set fire to the old Sunset house in Amador county. Conviction was secured mainly on a confession.

Horrell's counsel objected to the admission as evidence of this confession on the ground that it was coerced from the prisoner, who was badly frightened by the threats and intimidation. The appellate court held these grounds to be practically worthless.

The supreme court, however, in reversing the decision of the other two and ordering a new trial of Horrell, with this confession omitted from the evidence, had this to say:

"It is plain that the purported confession of Horrell was the result of threats, intimidation, coarse profanity, invective and mental coercion on the part of the officers, something which the law absolutely refuses to countenance."

"My child was burned terribly about the face, neck and chest. I applied Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. The pain ceased and the child sank into a peaceful sleep." Mrs. Nancy M. Hanson, Hamburg, N. Y.

WAS TOO SWEET ON BON-BON GIRL

Son of Mrs. Harry Lehr Taken from "Fair Havahd" for Fear He Might Contract Mesalliance, Dontcherknow

New York, Nov. 24.—Love of John W. Dahlgren, son of Mrs. Harry Lehr, for a brown-eyed candy girl has cut short his career in Harvard university. He is now in Pomona college, where his relatives will keep a sharp eye on him.

Dahlgren, 19 years old, entered Harvard last September. Dahlgren soon found it agreeable to go to the candy store, not far from his quarters, where there was a galaxy of pretty girls doing out sweets.

So far did Dahlgren lose himself in his love for the bonbon girl that he used to dream of her over his studies. The owner of the candy shop called on John P. Nolan, Harvard's tutor, to say that Dahlgren's persistent wooing upset the discipline in the establishment and that it interfered with trade to have one of the candy girls constantly being courted.

Nolan counseled Dahlgren to get down to work and give up the candy lass. When the youth scorned the advice the tutor wrote Mrs. Lehr, who was in Paris. Dahlgren was promptly taken out of Harvard a week ago and shipped to this city by his grandmother, Mrs. Drexel, who found a place for him in Pomona.

DETECTIVES GO TO SCHOOL

Elimination and deduction theories in the matter of running down and capturing thieves and other violators of the law are a few of the features to be shown detectives in a series of moving pictures, the first of which will be shown at police headquarters this afternoon with Lieutenant Joseph Faurot, head of the criminal identification bureau, acting as teacher and exhibitor.

Each lesson will last one and a half hours, beginning at 1 o'clock each afternoon. No fee will be charged for the lectures, but only will the lectures have to do with portraits and how to pick up criminals, but they also will elucidate the mysteries of the finger print system, of which Lieutenant Faurot is the acknowledged expert in this country. Several of the lessons will have to do with the preservation of the finger prints until the exhibits can be photographed to aid the police.

NEED ONLY ENGLAND NOW.

Sailing for Ireland today in the Celtic were A. Ireland, Dr. G. Scotland and David Wailes. The three passengers, who came from different parts of the country declared they would form a tripartite alliance and annex England if they found anyone answering to that name of the ship.

ENGLAND TOOK HORSE SHOW HONORS.

First honors in the international contest at the horse show last night went to England, the first victory for that nation since 1906. More than 4000 spectators took the jumps, two abreast, and the winners were Naughtly Perry, ridden by Lieutenant Walter Brooks, Yorkshire Light Infantry, and Harmon, ridden by Colonel P. A. Kenna. Second honors all went to England, while Canada captured third and fourth.

JOHN D. SWEARS OFF TAXES.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., called at the tax department yesterday to swear off part of the $2 million dollars personal tax that has been assessed upon him. He told the commissioners that the value of his personal property in this city was $204,495, and that the greater part of this sum was in bonds upon which other taxes are paid. But as Mr. Rockefeller had failed to comply with the new law for the registering of bonds he will have to pay taxes upon them.

W. K. Vanderbilt, who was assessed on personal property to the amount of 2 million dollars, swore off yesterday as a resident of Oakdale, Long Island, who has registered his bonds.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was assessed on $400,000 personal property, has agreed to pay on $200,000.

Young Mothers

No young woman, in the joy of coming motherhood, should neglect to prepare her system for the physical ordeal she is to undergo. The health of both she and her coming child depends largely upon the care she bestows upon herself during the waiting months. Mother's Friend prepares the expectant mother's system for the coming event, and its use makes her comfortable during all the term. It works with and for nature, and by gradually expanding all tissues, muscles and tendons, invigorates, and keeping the breasts in good condition, brings the woman to the crisis in splendid physical condition. The baby too is more apt to be perfect and strong where the mother has thus prepared herself for nature's supreme function. No better advice could be given a young expectant mother than that she use Mother's Friend; it is a medicine that has proven its value in thousands of cases. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. Write for free book for expectant mothers which contains much valuable information, and many suggestions of a helpful nature. BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., ALBANY, N. Y.

NEW REGULATIONS FOR U. S. ARMY ARE IN USE

Cadets at Roswell Military Institute Begin Work Under Tactics Which Cut Out Dress Parade Features.

(Roswell Register-Tribune.)

Many persons, unfamiliar with army matters, do not know how Uncle Sam provides for uniformity and exactness in the drilling of his soldiers.

The explicit directions for every movement of soldier, squad, company, battalion and regiment are set forth in the "Infantry Drill Regulations" of the United States army. All formations not embraced in these directions are prohibited, and every militia, national guard and military school in the United States uses this little book as its bible as far as drill is concerned.

The cadets of the New Mexico Military Institute become as familiar with its details as the officers of the regular army. Besides absorbing it upon the drill ground through day after day of constant repetition, it is studied. The second class averages two hours a week upon it for nine months. Then the first class goes over the same course again, until every cadet officer knows his "tactics" from cover to cover. It is this familiarity with army discipline and the practical application of it which makes the graduates from the school (a distinguished institution) eligible as second lieutenants in the regular army.

The war department has recently issued the new tactics. This comprises the first alterations since 1904. There are many minor changes and some radical ones. The cadets began putting them into execution immediately and are already using the new movements.

The principal idea of the entire change seems to be that to minimize the purely disciplinary drills, and increase as far as possible the practical field work. In technical terms these are respectively "close and extended order."

Battle formation, control of fire, the use of cover and the intelligent co-operation of subordinate commanders are thoroughly emphasized. Some of the close order formations have been abolished entirely and one or two new ones substituted. All unnecessary commands have been dispensed with. Also there are five changes in the manual of arms, increasing its value for discipline and display purposes. The duties of the corporal (who commands a squad of seven men) are increased. More responsibilities are resolved upon him and the other non-commissioned officers.

For instance, when developing for extended order, the corporal may command simply "Follow me," and lead his squad by the most convenient route to its place in the skirmish line. In short, the tendency is to allow as much freedom as possible without the loss of discipline or control in order to insure the quick and best results in real battle.

The custom at the institute has been to have a full dress parade three times a week. This year, however, it is held only twice (Wednesdays and Sundays) and more time is given to the movements.

Each cadet has an hour each day of steady, outdoor drill. Besides this there are setting up exercises every morning before breakfast. These features are combined with regular hours and an almost entirely outdoor life in a healthy climate. Under such conditions the health of the cadets at the N. M. I. is far above the average and is unequalled by almost any body of students in the United States. A military training gives a high quality which he can obtain in no other way, and best of all—character.

FRISCO ARCHITECT TOOK BRIBE IS CHARGE

San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 25.—A special session of the board of public works was called yesterday to consider with a committee of the grand jury certain accusations against City Architect Arthur H. Lamb. Owing to the fact that Chairman Sloss of the grand jury's committee on the board of works was unable to attend, President Casey announced the adjournment of the inquiry until some time that has yet to be set. Casey said that he was unable to fix a date, as he must first find out when it would be convenient for the committee of the grand jury to meet.

W. H. Smith, representing Arthur H. Lamb, asked if specific charges had been filed against his client, and was informed by Casey that they had not. There had been general criticism, but no specific charges.

The following resolutions had been adopted by the grand jury, and a copy was sent to the board of public works: Whereas, it has been brought to the attention of the grand jury that certain public officials and employees in the department of the board of public works and the city architect's office have received and accepted certain gratuities from a certain bidder on composition flooring and a certain bidder on railway supplies, it is hereby unanimously

Resolved, by the grand jury that the accepting of gratuities by public officials and employees in violation of the charter and of various sections of the penal code, and is a menace to the proper conduct of public business. Now, therefore, it is the sense of the grand jury that such practices be and are condemned.

Ford Accuses Lamb.
The charge against Arthur H. Lamb, which will be investigated, is the acceptance of a bribe and a charge against officers of the Kompote company of giving a bribe may also be lodged. W. H. Ford, a member of the grand jury, in discussing

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

Made from grape Cream of Tartar; absolutely free from alum

For sixty years American housewives have found Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder a guarantee of light, pure and wholesome food.

Lamb's alleged offense, said: "As a member of the grand jury, I am saying nothing, but as a member of the firm of Ford & Mallott I have a right to speak. In an open meeting of the board of public works I accused A. H. Lamb of accepting $350 from the Kompote company for a trip east. He made no denial, and after the meeting he told me he was paid more than $250."

Ford here read from section 34, article 16 of the charter, which specifically says that a salary shall be paid such officers as the city architect, and makes it wrongful for any officer to accept for any purpose whatever any monetary consideration, except he pay it over to the city treasury within twenty-four hours of its receipt.

Ford also quoted the sections of the penal code which make it a felony to accept or pay a bribe to a public officer, fixing the penalty at imprisonment in state prison. "I am not anxious of breaking up this system of grafting," said Ford, "and because I am a grand juror I see no reason why it should not be carried to the attention of the grand jury, in spite of the fact that the firm of which I am a member was discriminated against by Lamb."

Ford then recited the various stages of the bids for flooring the new city and county hospital, saying that the lowest bidder was discriminated against, and that Lamb was still making an effort to use Kompote at the hospital in spite of the report of the city chemist that Ford's preparation stood tests better.

BLONDES WILL WED ONLY BLONDES

Berlin, Nov. 25.—Real blondes, of the golden hair, peach blossom complexion and sky-blue eyes type of the novelists, who, according to the men of science are rapidly being crowded off the earth by their more aggressive dark-eyed sisters of the "nut-brown hair" and "raven tresses" variety, are not to become extinct. A new cult and community, having for its object race culture of the pure blonde and light-eyed type, has been discovered just across the German frontier in upper Austria. It calls itself the "New Templar community."
